

PROVIDENCE

MONTHLY

CONNOISSEUR'S GUIDE TO DRINKING IN PVD

Make crafted cocktails, worldly whiskey, better wine and secret cocktail clubs your New Year's resolution

December 20, 2017 By Julie Tremaine

Study Up at The East End

When your whiskey options come on a separate menu, and that menu is six pages long, you know you're in for a new experience. It only makes sense that The East End on Wickenden Street would have an extensive selection of bottles you haven't heard of, given that its owners also own, well, Bottles. Of their 300 choices for whiskey, the pours range from $3 to $150. Your best bet is to belly up to the bar and talk to the bartenders about what you like, and let them choose something similar, or better yet, put together a flight for you. The three current flights on the menu have New England, Asia and Private Reserve Kentucky themes, but they'll compile anything you'd like.